

Linda's professional life has included 25 years of nurse management and 17 years as an innkeeper in the New Hampshire White Mountains and seacoast, Rockport, MA. Linda feels blessed to have lived from the mountains to the ocean and has savored the beauty of the world that surrounds her all her life. While inn keeping to some of the most varied, romantic and fun-loving folks from all over the world, she found herself becoming travel guide to all the 'hot' photographic spots. More and more the camera became her passionate friend that gave natural joy and a hidden source of peace.

The digital age has certainly made it an adventurous ride. You will not see the awe-inspiring photos of the long time professional folks but you will share her joy in all things New England through her point of view.

Linda shoots with all Nikon products and manipulates very little as she likes what she sees. She set out on this journey later in life, but so enjoys being part of the art.

She has been in many solo and group shows. Presently, she is gallery associate at The Newburyport Art Association and had held a similar position in Rockport, MA.

Come, enjoy her passion and works from the Dahlberg point of view.
