

Dale Partis Greene

Having lived and painted most of her life in New England, Dale Partis Greene studied art while at college in Connecticut. Since settling in Ipswich, MA in 1994 she has been most inspired in recent years by studying oil painting with Caleb Stone and more recently with Albert Handell, Richard McKinley and Donald Jurney. She believes that painting en plein-air presents the most challenging and rewarding opportunities to really see, feel and connect with the changing moods of nature. Capturing a special moment in time is both her intention and pleasure.
