

JOAN RADENMACHER

After graduating from art school, Joan worked at an advertising agency in Boston illustrating fashions and jewelry. She later began a journey of watercolor landscape painting and still travels on that path. To see a blank piece of paper emerge with cohesive design and color that pleases many people who view it is a joy for her. Joan's work can be found in homes and corporate offices throughout the United States and abroad.