

SARAH SEABURY WARD

---

“ Shaping an owl in wood,

I think of the forests.

Working in wet clay on an otter,

I am reminded of riverbanks.

As an accredited wildlife handler and

Teacher with “The Nature Connection”,

I have been able to share

a wondrous world with others. “

Sarah Seabury Ward gave three interactive workshops in the Art and Nature Center on sculpting wildlife forms in clay, including a presentation with a live snowy owl provided by naturalist and wildlife rehabilitator Marcia Wilson of Eyes of Owls. Sarah Seabury Ward’s work continues to be available at the Museum Shop in the Peabody Essex Museum. She was also the Artist-In- Residence at Harry Lee Cole School in Boxford, Ma in March of 2009.

As an educator, she is the founder of The Nature Connection in Concord, Ma. Sarah Seabury Ward’s work is in galleries, private collections and available on commission.

Sarah Seabury Ward is available for workshops, lectures and demonstrations for audiences of all ages.
