I am an impressionistic/realistic landscape painter from Danville, NH. Art has always been a piece of me, my life. I attended Massachusetts College of Art, and have taken many courses over the years including life drawing at Boston Museum School, design classes and advanced drawing courses. It wasn't until I took a landscape oil painting class in the fall of 2006 that I found my true passion. I soon discovered pastel painting, still life painting, and most recently, portrait and figure work. I am currently a member of the Newburyport Art Association and also an original member of the Band of Brushes, a plein air group based out of Newburyport, Massachusetts. I provide ongoing oil, pastel, and acrylic classes.
